FEEL GOOD project aims to improve the relationship competences of healthcare professionals when working with users of healthcare/patients.

Outputs:

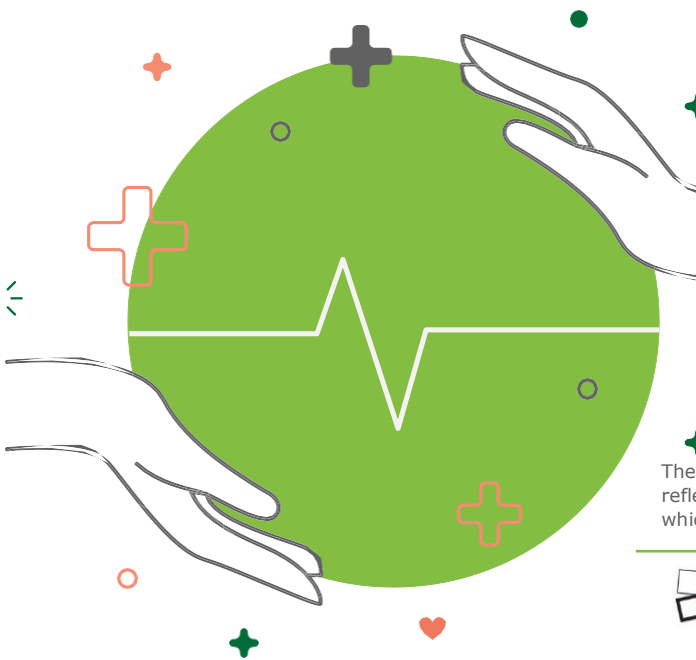

The consortium developed the final outputs of the project which are: i) a training Model "Relationship Competences for Healthcare Professionals" through stages of verification, co-evaluation; ii) pilot test and peer review of the deliverables and iii) a collaborative platform, which aims to provide training material to a wider audience beyond direct beneficiaries and to involve different target groups within the implementation of the activities.
